Principal's Post

Parents that are actively involved in their children's lives have children who do better in school. Your role as a parent is critical in helping your child be the best they can be. So how do you get involved in your child's education? Well there are many ways. Not everyone can volunteer at school, though we welcome that. One of the best ways to be involved is through simple communication. When you talk to your child about what they are learning, look at their work, or talk with your child's teacher, you communicate that their education is important. Then there is the care you provide them through healthy meals, getting a good night's sleep, and providing discipline when needed. Most of us know the importance of these daily parenting activities, but we get busy with work or school or other life events. So, let this post be a word of encouragement to put those simple daily efforts back on the "front burner" and thank you for your involvement in your child's life. It makes a huge difference and we want to partner with you to provide your child with an exceptional elementary experience.

Watch Dogs Wanted!

One way to get involved at school is to be a Watch Dog Dad! Your kids will love it. If you are able, please consider volunteering. For more information about how you can be a Watch Dog contact our school guidance counselor, Sandy Gates.

Unless you have been on a different planet, you are well aware that we are in the midst of flu and cold season. We want you to know that we have been working hard at sanitizing the classrooms each night and are encouraging students and staff members to practice good handwashing and cough covering. Here are some more tips and information for you to remember during this season.

- 1. If your child is sick (running a fever, vomiting) please keep them home.
- 2. When coughing or sneezing, cover with your elbow instead of your hand.
- 3. Wash your hands often with lots of friction and rinsing.
- 4. Get a good night's sleep. Proper rest can help your body keep up a stronger immunity.
- 5. Let us know if your child is out sick.

We have seen an increase of students being out recently and not all flu. Thank you for your attentiveness as we work to minimize the impact of this flu and cold season. If your child becomes sick at school, we will call you to come pick up your child. Please be sure that we have all the up to date contact information.
